Spotlight on Salisbury City Centre (Fortnightly Publication of the Salisbury Business Association Inc.)

Salisbury CityCentre

Salisbury City Centre ... Something for everyone!

Meet our Board ...

Each edition we will share with you a Director's Profile so you can get to 'meet' the people who support and lead your Association.

We thank all of our Board Directors for their willingness to go the extra mile to support the Association and its members.

Marty Edwards - Chair SBA Inc.

Board Director – Elizabeth Varas

Elizabeth Varas is our dynamic and hardworking Centre Manager of Parabanks Shopping Centre.

She speaks three languages and has a natural gift in dealing with people from all walks of life, she strikes an instant rapport with people... creating a great environment in which to negotiate.

• Why did Elizabeth want to support the work of the Association?

It is important to try and build a real sense of community within in our CBD. When people feel like they a part of a community they end up taking greater care of those around them, this includes our services and retailers.

The Salisbury Business Association works tirelessly to try and achieve this and this sense of community is something that I would love to take part in.

A snapshot about Elizabeth

I came to Australia in 1984 as a refugee, as a small child, not knowing the language and culture of Australia. I have since grown up here and consider myself very lucky to be able to live, work and play in Adelaide and in particular Salisbury.

I am a mum of 1 beautiful daughter, have a cat and a dog and along with my partner Mick, we share our love of camping in the great outdoors.

What does Elizabeth love about Salisbury and the Salisbury City Centre

Salisbury and it's CBD is a vibrant melting pot of so many diverse cultures. I love the variety and the opportunity to interact with so many different people from all over the world, its like going on an overseas trip without ever leaving my back yard!

We thank Elizabeth for sharing her passion and expertise with us.

How to pay yourself as a business owner

Learn how different types of business owners pay themselves + get some tips on how much.

How to pay yourself as a sole trader or as a company

Your business structure affects how you take pay and how you're taxed on that pay. If you've never done anything to set up a specific business structure, then you're automatically considered a sole trader.

How to pay yourself as a sole trader or partnership

Sole traders and partnerships pay themselves simply by withdrawing cash from the business. Those personal withdrawals are counted as profit and are taxed at the end of the year. Set aside a percentage of your earnings in a separate bank account throughout the year so you have money to pay the tax bill when it's due.

How to pay yourself as a company

Company owners often pay themselves a salary, which works the same way as with a normal job. The salary shows as an expense on the business books and the owner pays personal income tax on it. It's common for owners of smaller companies to take a modest salary and top it up with dividends from profits.

Get tax advice

While a salary might sound nice, there's extra admin and extra costs to being a company. The numbers don't always stack up, so definitely speak to an accountant or tax professional to decide what's right for you.

How much to pay yourself

Once you've decided how to pay yourself as a business owner, you still need to decide what to pay yourself. That number needs to strike a balance between what your household requires and what your business needs.

What the business needs

You need to leave enough cash in the business to cover:

 Expenses: Keep a formal list of what you owe and when it's due so you don't draw too much from the business at the wrong time.
 Accountants say it doesn't go well when business owners try to guesstimate their

- cash flow requirements. Keep some money aside for taxes too.
- Rainy day funds: Tuck away some cash to ride out business disruptions. E.g. You might keep enough aside to cover 30, 45 or 90 days worth of expenses.
- Reinvestment: Hold onto some money for developments and improvements. Someday you'll want to buy new work tools, try a new marketing idea, or hire a consultant.

What the household needs

Your household budget needs to cover day-today living expenses and debt repayments such as mortgages. Don't forget to plan for insurance and retirement, which your employer may have managed before you went out on your own.

Finding a balance

There will be negotiable items in both the home and business budgets. Be prepared for some give and take – especially during the early days of your business.

Typical business owner salary or pay

Most business owners take only modest weekly or monthly pay – just enough to meet household living expenses. The rest of the cash is left in the business where it acts as a float to cover against a lull in revenue or unexpected business expense. If cash reserves build up in the business, an owner might take out extra 'bonus' payments.

So while there aren't any worthwhile stats on average business owner salary or income (each business is different after all), their regular pay tends to be conservatively low.

How to pay yourself fairly

Irrespective of how much you pay yourself, be fair about it. Pay yourself a consistent amount at frequent intervals. That predictability will help you run a functional home budget.

This is where the rainy day fund for your business can help. Having a reserve of cash in the business reduces the need to dip into your own pocket when there's an unexpected expense at the shop or office. And having that financial security in your personal life helps clear your head to be a better business manager.

An accountant or bookkeeper can help you with this.
